Licensee also acknowledges that the Software may transmit anonymous data regarding usage to Pixate, and Pixate reserves the right to use such anonymous data for its internal business purposes (including to improve its products and services), it being understood that users of the Software may disable such feature.
- 2.5 EXCLUDED COMPONENTS. Some of the components included with the Software are governed by open source licenses (including certain sample code made available by Pixate), and are not considered part of the “Software” hereunder. Licensee’s rights and obligations with respect to those components are defined by the terms of those open source licenses, and Licensee will use such components in compliance with such terms. A list of third party open source components (if any are included with the Software) and the applicable license terms are set forth at www.pixate.com/open_source.
- 3. SUPPORT AND MAINTENANCE. Pixate has no obligation to provide support or maintenance unless Licensee purchases a separate offering that expressly includes such support or maintenance services.
